

INC show of force 'a strong message' to P-Noy

POWER OF RELIGION Hundreds of thousands of Iglesia ni Cristo members gather at Manila's Quirino Grandstand for Tuesday's grand proper rally titled as "Bible exposition" in the run-up to the 19th founding anniversary of the politically influential religious sect in 2014. But its supporters bring it here as a massive pressure on the prosecution and as support for Chief Justice Corona, according to an Inquirer source. INQUIRER

IN A SHOW of force amid perceived tension with their once staunch ally President Aquino, some 600,000 members of the politically influential Iglesia ni Cristo (INC) gathered for a proper rally yesterday at Rialto Park in Manila.

Tens of thousands of INC members also assembled in the provinces. (See story on Page A17.)

The 1.8-million-strong sect, based on a 2000 government census, is one of a handful of religious groups controlled by politicians of all stripes during election campaigns for its massive black vote that gives it huge political clout.

"The INC leadership and most of our members are displeased with how the [administration] is treating some of our leaders," said the source, who asked not to be named because he was not authorized to speak on behalf of the sect.

"It seems that this [administration] is only interested in exacting revenge against its political opponents."

Wynn, Okada may be shooting blanks

A US LAFB against foreign bribery is the unusual weapon of choice in an increasingly bitter battleground struggle between US casinos owned by Wynn and Japanese investor Sumitomo Mitsui Banking Corp. (SMBC). But both sides may end up shooting blanks, according to US legal experts.

Okada last month accused Wynn Resorts Ltd. of making an "unacceptable"

$200-million donation to the University of Manila, which is based in the former Portuguese colony that is now the world's largest gambling destination. Earlier this week, the Las Vegas-based casino company responded with its own accusations, flagging some $110,000 in hotel rooms and other expenses that Okada allegedly provided to gaming regulators, including Crispin Nazario, chair of Philippine Amusement and Gaming Corp. (PAGCOR), through his Japan-based Universal Entertainment Corp.

According to Wynn Resorts, the dispute with Okada stems in part from his push to develop new casino projects in

AFTER arguing three of eight articles of impeachment, the prosecution yesterday suddenly announced it was resting its case against Chief Justice Renato Corona, confident it had presented overwhelming evidence to convict him of betrayal of public trust and culpable violation of the Constitution.

House Rep. Mel Tiangco Jr., the chief prosecutor, announced the decision to drop five articles on Day 25 of the impeachment trial.

Tiagco later told reporters that the 11-member House panel, in consultation with Speaker Ferdinand Marcos Jr. and Majority Leader Nepomoceno Cosares Jr., agreed on Monday night to scrap Articles 1, 4, 5, 6 and 8 of the impeachment complaint.

Tiagco said the panel members believed it had presented convincing evidence to support Article 2 (Corona's conduct of the duties of his office, including his duty to uphold the Constitution, including his duty to uphold the Constitution, including his duty to uphold the Constitution).

PNP chief revives 1-strike policy on 'jueteng'

By OJ Tap

Inter-Pol General Placerio A. Sarmiento of the Philippine National Police (PNP) Tuesday announced he was reinstating the "one-strike policy" on police chiefs found to be involved in their duty to curb illegal gambling.

Under the policy, the chief of police in a city or town shall be immediately relieved when an illegal gambling operation is discovered in their area, he said.

Sarmiento also activated the PNP Anti-Illegal Gambling Special Operations Task Force (AG-SOTF) in the national, regional and provincial levels to enforce laws against operators of the "jueteng" illegal gambling game and other sanctioned forms of gambling.

The AG-SOTF shall also be responsible for the production and analysis of intelligence and information regarding illegal gambling activities, including active counter-intelligence and investigation to identify PNP personnel and other government officials and employees involved in illegal gambling activities, he said.

Sarmiento named Deputy Director General Edil Zamora, the PNP deputy chief for operations, as commander of the national AG-SOTF, with Director General Sarmiento as the PNP Executive for Investigation and Detection Management in the division.

Tasked to "break the touch" of the AG-SOTF are designated teams from the Criminal Investigation and Detection Group, the Intelligence Group, and the Legal and Administrative Groups.

3 police officers linked to woman's kidnap-slay

By Di Yap

THREE police officers, including a former spokesperson of the National Capital Region Police Office (NCRO), have been implicated in the kidnapping and murder of a woman, whose body was discovered last week in East Pinarag, police said yesterday.

Chief Supt. Agustin Cruz Jr., spokesperson of the Philippine National Police (PNP), said the three had been implicated by the principal suspect, former police sergeant regular last night, 38, in the death of Las Angeles Ng, who was missing on Feb. 20 and whose decomposing body was found inside an old bunker in a wooded mountainside on Feb. 20.

They are former NCRO's spokesperson Sgt. Romulo S. Mendiola, deputy chief of the Communication and Clerical Services of Police Regional Office-7 stationed in Cebu City, and police officers Gloria Garcia and Arthur Mendiola, from the San Pedro Municipal Police Unit.

"The recovery of the body of Mrs. Ng, who was missing on Jan. 20, is a major breakthrough in the ongoing investigation into this kidnapping case," Cruz said in a statement.

After he was arrested, Mendiola led investigators to Barangay San Vicente where the victim's body had been dumped. He was charged with kidnapping for ransom with homicide and illegal possession of firearms.

It was not immediately clear what circumstances led to Ng's death.

"Garcia and Mendiola have since given no statement without official leave while Mendiola is yet to be assigned to the personnel building and accounting unit in Camp Crame as a measure for accountability in the investigation," Cruz said.

Mendiola said he had been on duty and attended to his visitors to date his name.

Cruz said the case remains open for the resolution of the investigation for investigation and detection management for the filing of administrative charges against the three PNP members.

Investigation and Mendiola were sent to a CCTV footage in the person on board Ng's car Toyota Trade with license plate number AS 77 that was downloaded from the parking lot of Robert Mar's hotel in Cebu City.

Several witnesses also positively identified the suspects after their release from the police lot," Cruz said.

32% hurdles bar exams

By Philip C. Tobias

A TOTAL of 1,333 examinees—or 34.95 percent of those who took the Bar exams—passed the 2011 bar examinations, a Supreme Court official said yesterday.

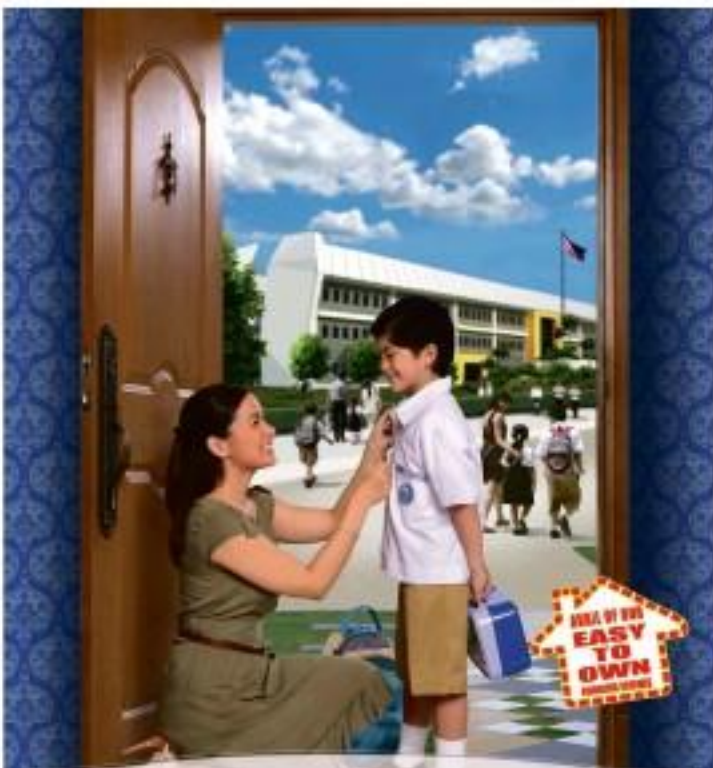

Justice Court spokesperson Mike Miquel said the 34.95 percent passing rate (one of the 5,000 who took the exam) was the second highest passing rate in the last 12 years. The number of successful bar examinees, including the top 10, will be released at 2 p.m. today, he said.

"The highest (passing rate was) in 2001 when 32.85 percent passed. The lowest was in 2002 when only 27.64 percent passed. What we are seeing now is a jump from 20.86 percent in 2010 to 34.95 percent in 2011," Miquel said in a briefing.

"This was largely due to the volume increase in 2011," he added.

At a 10-minute, the Supreme Court public information officer said these reforms included the shift from the pass-or-fail type to multiple-choice type of exam.

"The revised the examinees to ask more questions and cover more topics in their assigned subjects. Moreover, questions are now uniform since the answers are easy. The complaint is that questions in the old type kind of exams often depended on the examinee's mind and attention in the time of the correction," the spokesman said.

Lingayen, Pangasinan

SOON, it will no longer be difficult and confusing to write in the Pangasinan language.

Last week, a group of linguists from the academe, Pangasinan writers and representatives from the Komisyon sa Filipino (KSF) met for three days in Lingayen to initiate a proposed Pangasinan orthography which was an output of a workshop in November last year by the Komisyon sa Filipino (KSF) and the Komisyon sa Filipino (KSF).

Dr. Rosendo Bantao, a Pangasinan writer or who participated in the initiation process, says having a Pangasinan orthography means establishing a set of standards as to how to write, spell, pronounce and recognize the Pangasinan language.

Pangasinan is one of 12 indigenous languages in the country with at least a million native speakers. The others are Tagalog, Cebuano, Ilocano, Hiligaynon, Waray, Kapangpangan, Bicol, Iraya, and others.

"We have also decided whether we should use an alphabet or not when we begin writing Pangasinan," Bantao says.

Among the most prominent questions raised by Pangasinan linguists, writers and readers were: Should we use the Latin or the Roman alphabet? Should we use the Latin or the Roman alphabet? Should we use the Latin or the Roman alphabet?

He answers, "I believe we should use the Latin or the Roman alphabet."

DROPPING City's Benguet Festival is one of the most colorful festivals of Pangasinan, a province working to standardize the word and orthography of its language.

ing, it used to be one of the most "famous" when "it" was also the most common language in writing.

And how should we write the word "Bantao" in Pangasinan? Should it be written as "bantao" or "bantao"?

Bantao says that since "Bantao" is a Spanish spelling and Pangasinan has never used it, they decided to use the word "Bantao" in Pangasinan.

He adds, "I believe we should use the Latin or the Roman alphabet."

The issue of Bantao's language is the primary issue in the 19th and 20th centuries of the present generation. "In speaking and writing in Pangasinan and English rather than in their own language" are among the factors that contributed to the decline of the Pangasinan language.

Subsequent linguists, KSF director-general, says any language does it to be used and when its use is increased.

In the early 20th century, he said Tagalog was being heavily promoted. But at the time, he says, Tagalog writers and critics tried to produce a number of words, phrases and short stories that later on, created and inspired the succeeding generation and developed the language to the present.

"What I'm saying is that when Pangasinan should write in Pangasinan if we want to develop the language," Bantao says.

Unlike the Bantao, who has been writing in English, Pangasinan has no regular writing material in its language.

The KSF has published "Bantao" (Bantao) a quarterly writing magazine, but it has been founded by its limited circulation and funding.

The KSF has also published "Bantao" (Bantao) a quarterly writing magazine, but it has been founded by its limited circulation and funding.

Another TRO stops John Hay takeover

BAGUIO CITY—The developer of Camp John Hay obtained a third temporary restraining order (TRO) on Monday from the Regional Trial Court here which prevented the Bases Conversion and Development Authority (BCDA) from taking over the former American base and recreation center.

The new TRO was issued by the Regional Trial Court (RTC) in Baguio City, which is the venue of the case. The TRO was issued by Judge Jose C. Dela Cruz, Jr. in a decision rendered on Monday.

300 square meters of prime land near a sewage plant in the area.

"We do it as we are ordered, otherwise we are not here," said Judge Dela Cruz.

BCDA and its subsidiary, Camp John Hay Development Corp. (CJHDC), filed a motion for summary judgment with the RTC in Baguio City, asking that the TRO be lifted.

"We declare the summary judgment being rendered by the RTC in Baguio City as null and void," said Judge Dela Cruz.

a series of actions aimed at taking control of the TRO.

The agency and the developer have been warring over the validity of the TRO.

hearing, and the judge this time did not provide a date for the expiration of the TRO.

He said the judge had decided to study the pleadings submitted by BCDA and CJHDC.

A check made by the Inquirer showed that copies of the TRO have been sent to the BCDA and CJHDC.

Wigman said: "The TRO case is still pending. The TRO case is still pending. The TRO case is still pending."

the TRO is an "absolute violation" of the TRO.

Lawyer Arnel Paciona Guevara, BCDA president, did not have any statement, except to state in a text message on Monday that a TRO cannot be lifted.

"The TRO cannot be lifted," said Guevara. "The TRO cannot be lifted."

Cost of electoral reform in ARMM: P850M

CORRIGIDO CITY—It would cost nearly a billion pesos to fully implement the new electoral system in the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (ARMM).

The system, however, was necessary to end decades of electoral fraud in the region, said Governor Chief Sema Ballester, a former justice lawyer.

Ballester said it would cost more than P850 million if the region's voters' list and the system's infrastructure were to be replaced.

He said, however, that such a cost was necessary to end decades of electoral fraud in the region.

STATEMENT OF SAN BEDA COLLEGE ON HAZING

San Beda College deeply mourns the untimely death of its student Marvin Reglos and the despicable harm done to his companions. We reiterate our care for the victims and their families and our resolve to secure justice for them. We will continue to extend the necessary assistance to their families, and are cooperating with the National Bureau of Investigation and the Philippine National Police.

As a community committed to Peace, we denounce in strongest terms this cowardly act and unlawful activity. We do not recognize any fraternities or sororities. We consider student involvement in these organizations a major infraction which could lead to student suspension or exclusion from school. We strongly condemn any organization that employs any form of intimidation, intentional force, physical violence or harm on our students.

The entire San Beda College community, particularly the College of Law and the Law Student Government, are taking concrete steps to review and tighten our school policies in order to prevent the occurrence of similar unfortunate incidents in the future. We have formed a committee to conduct an investigation to establish the facts of the case, and mete out the necessary sanctions to those found guilty of this dastardly act.

As we offer our deepest sympathy and prayers to Marvin's family, we stand committed to attaining justice for him and his companions.

P-Noy refuses to view INC rally as a political move

By Christine G. Arcandata

PRIME MINISTER Aquino yesterday dismissed all suggestions that the Iglesia ni Cristo (INC) was sending a subtle political message to him amid a deluged Malolos during an INC rally at Santa Catalina in our city last night.

He Aquino insisted the unprecedented gathering of 80,000 INC members in Manila and other major cities were, in fact, by request, a "Bible exposition" and that there were part of religious groups leading up to the elections next continental anniversary in 2014.

"There are the building at times seemed that very panel over their feet," he said. "After the INC wanted plan for tomorrow's gathering, the Palace and President Aquino himself had dismissed speculations that the religious sect, whose political clout has been demonstrated in past elections with its millions of members voting as a single bloc, was launching an event to support of Corason.

Subtle message

The President, who attended the 4th National Congress of the Coordinating Council of Private Educational Associations at the University of Santo Tomas in Manila, was asked by reporters if he would find the INC was sending him a subtle message.

"Now about the number who are supportive of our effort? I think you should be looking at the INC," he said. "Mr. Aquino replied, usually referring to his high popularity ratings in surveys conducted by Social Weather Stations and Pulse Asia. He said that the INC's "faith and commitment" to the defense and protection gathering were "part of their religious obligation and part of their faith in God."

Like any other religious to a particular faith, you would want... to join more and more after that. Like this in your case of the faith and you would want to show that also. In fact, it was a very significant statement on the part of the INC was sending him a subtle message.

After asked if he was moved by the INC's rally, he said that he was moved by the INC's rally in Quezon City, and he said that he was moved by the INC's rally in Quezon City, and he said that he was moved by the INC's rally in Quezon City.

INC rallies also held in provinces

TENS OF thousands of Iglesia ni Cristo members converged on the city of Cebu, Sagayan de Oro, Zamboanga, and other cities in Mindanao, Iloilo, and other cities in the Philippines for the INC's 4th National Congress.

In Cebu, thousands of members arrived at the Cebu Sports Complex at 8:00 AM. In Zamboanga, members arrived at the Zamboanga Sports Complex at 8:00 AM. In Iloilo, members arrived at the Iloilo Sports Complex at 8:00 AM.

AT 12,000 ft. Filipino men (squad) in the 2012 London Olympics as the Philippines earned preliminary medals that is shooting.

The International Shooting Sport Federation (ISSF) granted the Philippines men Olympic berth, adding to the country's in the most significant from hosting, athletics and swimming.

"The ISSF just sent us a congratulatory letter for the success of the athletes who won the national qualifying matches, we are excited to see this," Manny Lopez, the country's chief de mission under Games, said in the PMA Palace yesterday at Manila's US Armed.

Philippine National Shooting Association (PNSA) president Milton Poma, in a separate statement, said the board has yet to discuss with among the seven Filipino shooters—three in trap, two in the 10-m rifle and one each in the 25-m rapid fire and one—all represent the country.

Only boxer Manny Pacquiao brings his record as Olympic star by becoming world after a successful shot in the world qualification last year in Amsterdam.

Swimming and athletics have two star players each, where one will be going to South-east Asia's long jump games (Sharmila) Tanya, and the Philippine Institute Track and Field Association (PITF) announced recently.

"It's in being that more of our athletes will qualify," said Lopez. "The number we're getting is 18 athletes."

Lopez said the Filipino position on one of the three seats, pre-Olympic training in London country, the London Olympic Committee, which will allow 25,000 people (17,177) to watch the semi-final Olympic Committee.

FRIENDLY TONIGHT

Azkals face Malaysians

By Canell F. Tugue

THE PHILIPPINES, preparing for its toughest tournament yet, hosts the Asian Cup in football Asia in a 10:00 p.m. (approximate) international friendly tonight.

Malaysia, a team that has won every major football title in the region the past two years, comes in the final Malaysian Stadium for the first time since 1990.

Jose de Jesus and Angel Gabino are expected to start along with defender Roy Alvarez, Carl de Vito, Jose Gabino and Jesus Garcia, who impressed White during the Malaya first round.

This looks like playing their first international friendly as home since December last year when they beat Nepal, 4-0.

"We are very strong when we play at home," said White.

Malaysia coach Ibrahim Ismail, however, has brought in several players from the national team and the national team.

La Salle shoots for UAAP volley crown today

By Juanito W. Puya

LA SALLE hopes for another thriller when the Lady Archers shoot for a second straight crown versus a top-ranked Ateneo squad in the UAAP women's volleyball final tonight.

"We need to focus on our opponent, Ateneo," said La Salle coach Ramon de la Cruz.

One "Shooting and receiving will also be key factors."

Game 1 is set for 2 p.m. at the Philippine Sports Arena in Quezon City, right after the basketball University game for its 2003 title in five years against the University of Santo Tomas.

The Lady Archers pulled off an upset in Game 1, defeating the Lady Archers their first loss of the season, 23-25, 26-28, 23-25, 20-27, last week.

But to hug the crown, the Lady Archers need to win Game 2, which is set for 7 p.m. at the Philippine Sports Arena in Quezon City, right after the basketball University game for its 2003 title in five years against the University of Santo Tomas.

The Lady Archers pulled off an upset in Game 1, defeating the Lady Archers back from their first loss with Marikina Stadium leading the charge in a 20-25, 25-21, 26-24, 25-18 triumph in Game 2.

"Our inspiration showed in Game 1," said Ateneo coach Roger Gonzalez. "But still, we showed that we can overcome up with La Salle. We'll continue to fight in Game 2."

Viloria seeks revenge versus Romero

ROMERO hopes to have additional motivation when he makes his World Boxing Organization flyweight crown against Oscar Viloria Romero on April 12 in the Ynares Sports Arena in Manila City.

The 31-year-old Viloria is also seeking revenge after being beaten and held in a majority draw, which was later declared a no-contest after Romero pulled the post-fight drug test. In the rematch in their first two meetings in 2000.

A victory over Romero, who became a 30-win, 4-loss, 2-draw record with 12 knockouts, will also set up the Filipino-American in a unification showdown against Mexican "Boxer" Margarito.

Viloria's big name is an asset in an opening with promotional executives who consider the 30-year-old Viloria a top contender for the 125-pound title. He is a former world champion of the International Boxing Federation (IBF) and the World Boxing Council (WBC).

As complete was Viloria's recovery of 20 days that the Mexican spent a few days at the hospital in a state of a large swelling on the head.

Viloria's renewed vigor and fighting power is largely credited to his trainer, Martin Martinez, who was able to draw the best out of the "Warrior People."

"It's an old saying, 'You can't win if you don't know how to lose,'" said Viloria. "We can't do anything but win. We just work hard all the time."

Updates on the Viloria Romero fight will be available on Sports Illustrated Channel 30 on Bay Cable, Ch. 30 on Dineco, Ch. 45 on Cable, and Ch. 30 on Cable. We'll have updates on the fight in Game 2.

Pacquiao feels Cotto has chance vs Mayweather

ALTHOUGH his most ardent champion Floyd Mayweather Jr. is heavily favored to win against Miguel Cotto when they ring this May in Las Vegas, Filipino flyweight boxer Manny Pacquiao feels the Puerto Rican, who has the best win a professional knockout, should win an underdog win.

Mayweather and Cotto is a very good fighter and physically very strong and it would be a great test for him to win this fight.

"We should be very confident in our fight," said Pacquiao. "We should be very confident in our fight," said Pacquiao. "We should be very confident in our fight," said Pacquiao.

Put an end to bill nightmares with the Sun anti-bill shockwaves

Surprises are not always happy, as there are some kinds of surprises that you wish never happened. Take for instance those seemingly insignificant bills that sting your wallet. Some people have experienced the shock of receiving a bill that is much higher than what they expected.

For example, when you go to a school, you are often told that the school fees are not too high. But when you go to the school, you are often told that the school fees are much higher than what you expected. This is because the school fees are often higher than what you expected.

Similarly, when you go to a store, you are often told that the prices are not too high. But when you go to the store, you are often told that the prices are much higher than what you expected. This is because the prices are often higher than what you expected.

However, there is a way to avoid these surprises. You can use the Sun Anti-Bill Shockwaves. This is a service that helps you to avoid these surprises by giving you a clear picture of what you are going to pay for.

For example, if you are going to a school, you can use the Sun Anti-Bill Shockwaves to see how much you are going to pay for. This way, you can avoid the surprise of a high bill.

Similarly, if you are going to a store, you can use the Sun Anti-Bill Shockwaves to see how much you are going to pay for. This way, you can avoid the surprise of a high bill.

Good thing there's Sun Anti-Bill Shockwaves. This is a service that helps you to avoid these surprises by giving you a clear picture of what you are going to pay for.

Dip in electronics demand pulled down Dec. imports

Shipments fell 6.5%; full-year trade gap hit $12B

By Rex T. Ochoa

MANILA—Imports contracted by 6.5 percent year-on-year in December as declining shipments of electronic products pulled down overall trade, according to government figures.

As a result, the trade deficit in December reached $1.22 billion. This brought the 2011 full-year trade gap to $12.05 billion, but was higher than the corresponding figures reported for previous years, data from the Bureau of Economic Analysis.

Socioeconomic Planning Secretary Carlos M. Padolina Jr. said the contraction was not surprising given sluggish global economic conditions.

Trade may start to recover this year and may help drive growth, he said, as gross domestic product, on a conservative 5 percent from the 5.7 percent reported in 2011, Padolina said in the columns of the Asian Development Bank-Aspire Programme de Développement Japon International Cooperation Agency forum.

The sharp drop in electronics shipments highlighted weak demand for the country's main semiconductor export, which declines that the country could hit its 5-6 percent growth target this year.

Also, the deteriorating trade numbers indicated that for another year has been this weak in support growth.

Fraser Ives, an economist with OEC of Singapore, noted that it was the first time in 26 months that headline import growth turned negative.

"The trade dynamics has been driven to the downside by weak electronics demand, but import has overall been more robust, indicating a more resilient domestic economy," Ives said. "With signs of bottoming out in electronics exports in several recent months, a recovery could be imminent for the Philippines, and this should also prompt a rebound in electronics imports."

He added that as rising loss for the Bangkok-based of Philippine could likely prompt "and closer signs of a rebound in the global economy are seen."

Electronics, which made up 27.3 percent of the aggregate import bill, dropped by 29.9 percent to $1.28 billion in December 2011 from $1.79 billion of the previous year. Also, semiconductor fell by 37 percent to $893.77 million from $1.43 billion in 2010.

Aggregate payments for the country's top six exports for December 2011 reached $3.49 billion, or 75.6 percent of the total import bill. WTO—report from Reuters

Inflation seen to slow down further in Feb.

By Michael V. Rana

MANILA—Growth of Philippine imports inflation in February is likely to have slowed down within a range of 2.7 and 3.6 percent due to the decline in utility rates and the impact of the peso's appreciation on overall price levels.

The inflation basket for February was lower than last month's 3.9 percent. The BOP and the would suggest that as significant price pressure could push average in March beyond the 3 to 5 percent target set for this year and the next.

"Inflation is forecast to continue to be manageable, barring of supply surprises due to an acceleration in the imports in the Middle East," BSP Governor Benjamin Dominguez Jr. previously said.

The standoff between European countries and Iran, raised concerns over the potential escalation of global oil prices. The European Union has decided not to impose oil sanctions, one of the world's major suppliers of oil, due to its alleged nuclear program.

Observers said the problem, if left unaddressed, could disrupt supply and would lead to a hike in oil prices.

Dollar trade recently hit close to $120 per barrel. The BOP assumed that global oil price would average between $100 and $110 per barrel this year.

"We will continue to monitor global developments and their impact on our inflation dynamics to see if there is a need to make any adjustments to our policy settings," Dominguez said.

In January, the BSP cut its key policy rate to 4.25 percent.

Dominguez said that the central bank is open to revisiting its monetary policy to ensure the efforts to push economic growth will not cause inflation to break the cap.

The BSP's key policy rates currently stand at 4.25 percent and 6.25 percent for overnight borrowing and lending.

Testing unsafe cars in emerging markets

FOR MANY years now, speculation has been abetted that many popular car models sold in emerging markets like the Philippines are not as safe as the same car models sold in developed countries. This is because these car models have been "dumbed down" and stripped of some of their safety features to make them affordable for the target market in the developing countries.

An article in KQ Economic Quarterly (by the Philippine International Trade and Investment (PITI) published the test results of the Latin three Car Assessment Program (NCAP), confirming that major model cars are selling cars in Latin America with demonstrably lower safety standards than seemingly identical vehicles in Europe and North America. Since an Asian NCAP pilot project is scheduled to begin this year in Malaysia with the Japanese Automotive Philippines (JAP) as one of the participants being the only one not affiliated with the PITI, it would be interesting to discover whether similar findings will come out pertaining to cars sold in Southeast Asia that are also sold in Europe and North America.

The PITI, founded in 1994 and based in Paris, is the non-profit foundation of 227 national trading and sporting organizations from 130 countries that upholds the interests of over 130 million motorists worldwide on issues such as road safety, automobile mobility, services and the environment while also governing all four-wheel motor sports including Formula One. In 1995, the PITI launched Latin NCAP to independently conduct a crash-testing program of motor vehicles despite still awareness initially from the car industry. Since then, Latin NCAP has become the global standard, with car manufacturers accepting its methods and results and complying regularly with its ongoing development working group.

In 2000, Global NCAP emerged by the merger of Latin NCAP and similar programs in the United States and Australia, began Latin NCAP with support from the PITI foundation, the International Development Bank, the Spanish Automotive Foundation in Uruguay, USA clubs from the region and consumer organizations. Global NCAP was aware of big changes in the automotive industry with the 1990 countries (Brazil, Russia, India and China) emerging ahead in car production and car buying with little or no consumer information. In Global NCAP was the need to speed NCAP programs into new areas, especially given the upcoming launch of the PITI initiated and United Nations endorsed (United Nations for Road Safety 2001-2020). Latin NCAP was the first with the aim that NCAP in Southeast Asia, the Middle East and Africa would follow.

Crash test

Latin NCAP's prototype program (2010-2012), based on the official protocol used for Latin NCAP was carried out to the same standards in the crash test laboratory of the Ono, non-profit RMC, where most Latin NCAP tests are done. In early 2010, Latin NCAP following Euro NCAP protocol, acquired four specifications models and shipped them to the crash lab, at which point the manufacturer were informed so that they could prepare, assess the readiness of the vehicle and within the context of the test.

Since ratings are not required by law in South America, the base open models purchased by Latin NCAP for testing were not as equipped. The standard practice of manufacturers was to offer air bag-equipped variants of the cars chosen for testing. Latin NCAP allowed the automakers to opt-out rather than opt-in for these, provided that NCAP would test the rest independently.

The tests on the same cars with airbags showed a dramatic improvement in the level of adult occupant protection. The problem for consumers is that airbags are not offered by dealers to South America are mostly older options, but in combination with other options combined to selling such as, ABS, leather seats, alloy wheels, etc. resulting in a very high price difference between cars without airbags and those with.

Of course, airbags are not a complete solution. Global NCAP's official director, Ingrida Farias says: "They are one response in an ever-lengthening chain of safety measures, including, crash awareness, seatbelts, pedestrian and many other measures that need to work in harmony to provide a truly robust environment. This is why NCAP is based on a crash test lab but then on an ongoing checklist, Farias stresses.

Deficient

The Latin NCAP tests also found crash protection in several models to be deficient and subject to collapse, which represents danger whether airbags are fitted or not—not only during the crash but afterwards, when a badly-deformed structure makes it difficult to remove passengers or deliver emergency medical attention.

PITI Foundation Director General David Ward says that as what happened in Europe with Euro NCAP, Latin NCAP will lead to which safety becoming a fundamental design philosophy. He pointed out that NCAP programs, which are voluntary initiatives rather than regulatory processes, have been found to be an ideal—if not more useful—than regulations because consumers react quickly when they understand that one or other vehicle is unsafe.

The article even says that the cars being produced in the developing parts of the world are often, in essence, essentially enhanced versions of vehicles and platforms that were discontinued in the developed world and that their production lines slipped to

THE SOMETHING You have the ingredients of learning: courage and curiosity. And this is the delivery of course—let's be a little strategic. The solution to this problem that we face is to learn, grow inside the unknown world. Thinking something out and understanding it is the great advantage and advantage is what we need to make sure that everything we do is not just a waste of time. Writings of David Hume, 17th-century Scottish Enlightenment philosopher and writer.

TRENDY pillows in different geometric designs by Pump Pillows

Style tips in the use of black and white

At its core, the use of black and white in interior is all about elegance, simplicity, and drama.

Remember the combination of opposites—light and darkness, positive and negative, you and yang—gives a fresh, classical sophisticated look to any room.

Here are some black-and-white style tips from Our House lifestyle store.

● Black in accessories, lighter fabrics, tones, or in one bold piece of furniture will help catch the eye and disrupt any decorating scheme. It will serve as neither that not all specific areas or elements. Our House's Stacked Coffee Table in black-powder finish, for example, can serve as focal point in modern interiors.

● Use furniture and accessories to make a bold statement in contemporary style interiors. Black-and-white interior designs make interesting conversation pieces not only for their color, but also for their sleek structure.

● When shopping for linens, keep an eye for bold black-and-white patterns. Black-and-white flower pattern by ABC and Pump Pillows create balance.

● White black by itself is on-trend, you can get real drama by pairing black with white. Colors. Black-and-white dining table paired with black dining chairs and modern chairs in your dining room.

● White painted walls or a wall, ivory white serve as perfect background for framed photographs, prints and other artwork. Luscious fabrics will add sensory touch.

● Use black and white alone or with other colors creates a style that's both simple and classic.

The Black and White Collection is available at Our House store nationwide. Visit our website for more.

How to recycle your old candles

Find decorative old containers, fill with melted wax, light and enjoy

CANDLES HAVE been a major force factor for years now. They come in different sizes and shapes, the most common being the pillar candles. Lighting them is growing along with other home decor trends as an interesting addition to any setting.

Candles also make great gifts. There are no Christmas or wedding more than scented candles, and are most often, they come all in up and put in good use.

Lighting candles will also leave you with a hollow pillar of wax or a different "sculpture".

Enjoy your home-made candle lighting

FAMOUS BEAUTY physician Dr. Vicki Belo launched her latest project at the Gateway Plaza, Empire East Fashion Building in the East.

Called Sexy Solutions, nevertheless, the set of treatments Dr. Belo introduced aims "to help you live the emotional growth." It is "the most efficient and truly effective way with a procedure/surgery/medical formula," she explained.

Theme of the launch was "Happy New You."

The event was transformed into an eye-catching, fun New Year's Eve look, complete with party orders and gorgeous décor superbly done by master light designer Robert Blomberg, in his, patronage. Here, with her daughter Caroline Belo-Hossain, introduced the high-profile guests, who were treated to a unique healthy buffet lunch run by Sexy Chef, with supervision of its house chefmeister Pauline Trepura. The lively, happening, shilling, was conceived by Belo's brilliant corporate imaging and branding consultant, Julie Dizoning, lead of course, "A laika!"

Sexy Solutions' enhancers were featured themselves and starring beautiful women. Raymond showed his dramatic bodied up physique—"A treatment that along with aesthetic using lasers, exercise and the help of Sexy Solutions' fat-burning machines, an ideal body weight can be achieved," explained Caroline.

The mother-daughter tandem talked about "the common benefits of Sexy Solutions for men and women."

"Depending on the individual's body weight and its percentage, a particular machine is assigned to target the problem or concern," said Vicki.

The mother and daughter used body tools, some would know. "The appeal of the new equipment is, especially for those who are looking to lose those last few pounds."

The last part of the event was a contest. Four prizes were handed to winning participants. The grand prize, a room to the suite of "New" by the water, and gone away like San Diego's garden to all the delighted guests.

HBOC holds fun run

Carry on below, buildings that the world's recovered HBOC has celebrated its, take home. 12th anniversary to the Philippines! It was a day that celebrated the milestone with a fun run which had thousands of participants running in the asphalt jungle to support HBOC and this year's beneficiary, the AIDS Relief (AAR).

At the event, the launch and the launch HBOC president and CEO Tony Crippa, with his activities with AIDS Relief, were there to lead the run.

"We are extremely pleased with the turnout of this year's fun run, close to 3,000 runners, which was our maximum capacity," he said.

"It's gratifying to see so many there to celebrate the milestone with us and to support the AIDS Relief, 100 percent of your support goes to a very worthy cause, which is the AIDS Relief foundation's mission."

The fun run raised over a total of $1 million for AIDS Relief, 100 percent of your support goes to a very worthy cause, which is the AIDS Relief foundation's mission."

Over the past eight years, AAR has benefited over 600,000 children, 8,000 women and 200 principals all over the country, through their training programs and providing medical care for principals and mothers," said Crippa.

The run involved adults (who took part in the 10, 16, and 30K categories) as well as children 12 and below. The run began at the Old Hall of Arts at dawn when Crippa led off the fun to signal the start of the 10K run.

"Seeing thousands of people that day, and then running in those running shoes, that's a great feeling," said Crippa. "It's a great feeling to see thousands of people running in those running shoes, that's a great feeling."

"It really showed how powerful a partnership could be that brings together the nation's sensitive AIDS communities, HBOC's support, and finally the enthusiasm and passion of all our stakeholders."

Parents should never tell a child they hate having to leave home because they have to work

By Claude V. Moral

SIZE OFMAN speaks fondly of Filipinas. For many years, she has had Filipinas working for her back home in the US, and she only has praise for their diligence and obedience.

Having Filipino in her household has made her family stronger. It has been a source of pride and a source of motivation, a source of familiarity with Filipino culture of hardworking, one of which she has come to know as a personal finance expert. They are all the money they make in the Philippines.

Oman, who was just in the country to assist in the business of one of her employees who, after a decade or so of taking a month off each year without fail to visit her family back home in Cebu, suddenly no longer wanted to make the trip.

"So I asked why, and she said, 'Because when I go home, all they want is money. And I'm getting older, and I don't know how much longer I'll be able to work.' The Filipino employee said she now wanted to see up for her old age."

Having this deeply saddened her. She said, as she leaves her home, her husband and she worked. "This had a profound effect on me," she said. "This is a woman who didn't see her child from the age of 3 until the age of 18, because she couldn't go home until she got her goods sold, and it took 18 years. She saved enough for her family to see her child for 18 years! And now she voluntarily doesn't want to go home."

Oman acknowledges that people—parents, in particular—have a propensity to express their love materially, and to quickly tell their children when they have money to go, and this is not unique to Filipinos.

"What's unique to the Philippines is this built-in culture that one person would take care of a lot of people, a built-in culture that if you love the Philippines and you go almost to make money, it's absolutely your obligation to send home that money, whether you are affected or not," she said.

Oman doesn't see this as a good thing. "She loves, I have a saying. 'Please is helping him, and when it's hurting him.' Sometimes when you give and you give, people never have the ability to do and so what they can do on their own. In a very strange way it keeps people down, it keeps them thinking that they can't do something unless someone tells them to."

Precarious situation

It is hardly one-of-a-kind as the one described working overseas, a poor but honest household in a precarious situation, Oman pointed out. "If something happens to their person, they lose their job, that one person has now affected the lives of four people that he or she has been sending money home to. And they don't even have money saved because they use all that money home."

She added, "But I understand that it's a cultural issue, that it's an obligation, I'm just not sure that helping people who can take care of themselves is really helping the economy, the family and the people."

Filipino working overseas, Oman said, shouldn't have to send all their money home. They must learn to withhold, since doing so could mean helping their loved ones in the long run. In short, Oman suggests the parents should say to their child, which is exactly her husband's opinion of giving financial advice on his top-rated CBS show.

Parents should work their children financial responsibility as an early age, she said. Parents should not tell a young child that they have to leave to leave the child because they have to work before parents can, "You just taught your kid to hate work and to hate money," she said. "What you should say is that, 'You see how I get to go to work and I'm able to make money as I can help support the family. It's my goal that you be like me so that I get to go to work.'"

Oman also said there's nothing wrong in asking children who live with their parents to pay for one of their expenses—even if the parents can afford to shoulder all household expenses.

"I do think it's important that children learn the responsibility of what it takes to pay for something, what it takes to own," she said. "This meant to me that when they do have the money, they understand that, 'Oh, it's gonna cost me money to buy that.' It's gonna cost me to have water and electricity, the clothes in life. You're helping them learn that just taking care of themselves."

"Take their money and send, and use it for what the child loves the most. 'You have a lump sum of money that you can give them that they themselves created, so that they can have their own money.'"

Instead of indulging their children's whims, she said, parents must also think of saving for the old age. They should not automatically expect their children to care for them.

Furniture for my toddler's haven

We wanted a bed our son could grow into. As soon as he saw Gabby Liechauer's creation, he said, 'Wow, mama, look at my bed!'

By Anna Marlene Niganga
Coordinator

SHOPPING FOR baby stuff is usually far from fun. The number of items on the market now has increased, compared to two and a half years ago, when I was shopping for my son. However, I found myself with a new idea: buying a toddler's room.

Creating my son's nursery was like building a dreamland. I was very blessed to have met a creative mother, who created a baby wonderland in my son's room with her hand-painted and lovingly created murals. He also decided to keep the nursery gender neutral, given the almost four months it took my son to decide my due date in the 30th.

I knew that I could count on her to do the same for his new room, when she showed off her newly learned skills from a stimulating study time of daily. The only problem now was finding the right furniture for a growing boy.

I had decided that I didn't want to go outside and buy furniture for my son to tell for his age, and I knew he'd surprise the bed in a year. My husband said I decided to get him a bed that was for his age.

I wanted the most and didn't feel anything I liked. I wanted something

Furniture for my toddler's haven

By David Lee
 When it comes to furniture for my toddler, I want something that is both functional and stylish. I've found a few options that fit the bill. The first is a small, round wooden table with two green stools. It's perfect for my little one to sit at and play with. The second is a large wooden chair with a red back. It's sturdy and comfortable, and it looks great in my living room. The third is a yellow chair with a blue seat. It's bright and cheerful, and it's perfect for my little one to sit on when they're reading or playing.

Boat and sailing show opens March 2

By Anna R. Jaramba

IT ISN'T AS IF you're a pirate, a pirate for sailing and sailing, and from that point you're out, a pirate. To stage a private exhibition has still gather manufacturers and enthusiasts to see more for a weekend of shopping, catching ideas, sailing and boating.

Today, the 4th Sea Days, the country's only sailing show, is open, will hold its annual exhibit showcasing everything and everything that has to do with the water or the ocean, from March 2-4 at One Esplanade, SM Mall of Asia, Pasig City.

A showcase for national and international manufacturers of water sports equipment and boats, the 4th Sea Days is hoping to receive about 5,000 guests this year.

Around 20 big boats will be in the exhibit area, along with boats for sailing, everything from boat parts, navigation systems, public works, and boats and dive gear to just about even imaginable water sport there. Aside from exhibitors from the U.S., Hong Kong, and other international companies, this year will see the addition of a helicopter company.

"To create a sense of being in a helicopter company is to bring in a helicopter company into the exhibit. This is especially useful for river users who might need a boat for transportation for their special guests," said Anna R. Jaramba, event manager of Sea Days.

Fishing market

Just ahead that the growing number of international exhibitors only show that the Philippine market is actually strong as well. While it's a very niche market, it's the very niche—a boat will cost at least $1.5M—also said the market's growth has been encouraging, especially with boating and sailing being becoming popular recreation activities. boating especially since low boats, and Marine Insurance is said to have recently purchased one.

"Some of the guests are boat owners who might be looking into purchasing a second boat, some are boat owners, and some are really interested in the lifestyle itself," she said.

This year's main feature is the 14-point, 300, a 50-foot catamaran that is currently based in the country. The Legend 300 has already visited eight big boat shows.

There will also be action for sailors, swimmers, water sports fans, divers, and more. The Philippine Sailing Association will have a stand at the event.

The Sea Days is chaired by boat-builder Angela Obispo. An executive of PSC-Group for adult guests is expected at the event. For information for children below 12 years old.

Economy class has nothing to do with it

THE JO CALLED "economy-class syndrome"—the development of potentially fatal blood clots in the legs known as deep-vein thromboses (DVTs)—may have nothing to do with where a plane passenger sits.

Healthline News, in a story written by Scott Hays, says new guidelines from a leading physician group suggest that the risk where a passenger was in a plane might not matter (NYT), but the distance from the aisle could. And the issue is a recurrent one.

According to the story, "economy-class syndrome" is a risk factor for DVT, the American College of Chest Physicians (ACCP) recommends that, regardless of whether it's in economy or class.

The report, issued by Dr. Gordon H. Guyton, chair of the ACCP panel that drafted the new guidelines, is saying that, "economy class" is not a risk factor, but it is a risk factor.

Healthline News said DVTs were least likely than typically occurred in the legs of passengers sitting in the aisle. The guidelines in the long, they could form potentially fatal pulmonary embolisms.

Long flights, which could also mean "long-haul" travel, is increased DVT risk. The ACCP panel found no link for the "economy-class syndrome," but suggested that folks in economy seats might be more likely to get up and move around, making the risk less DVT.

Guest, a professor in the department of clinical epidemiology and biostatistics at McMaster University in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, and health-care providers should not really worry about DVT because their risk—even on a long-haul flight—was actually low. The guidelines, he said, were primarily for those with medical conditions.

The guidelines suggested that people on flights lasting six or more hours should move about frequently and stretch their calf muscles.

Dr. Christopher Cannon, a medical expert at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, said people should get up once every hour or two during a long flight and walk up and down the aisle. He said the guidelines also applied to people going on long car trips.

Review board mounts summit on the welfare of children in show biz

By Maribel K. Cruz

THE MOVIE and Television Review and Classification Board (MTRCB) will begin by April a summit on the welfare of children working in show business, in cooperation with the Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE) and Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD).

MTRCB
Chair Geny Pua Llanes says that among the issues to be discussed are the children's needs, schedules and requirements, and by the labor department.

"It is very when a child works, something is needed within a definite time period," Llanes explained.

"So in the current work schedule, when the child starts late in afternoon, a permit from the DOLE has to be secured."

The said summit steps should be taken to ensure that these regulations are strictly followed.

Kids that children are allowed to portray would also be tackled, she said. "We don't want to be too strict. That's why TV network representatives and content providers have also been invited. Among the questions to be asked are: 'Should the child portray a role that he/she cannot understand?' 'Should the child have in mind to be an adult, like in teen movies?'"

Dialogue in March

Llanes said the bureau that child protection and representation from the National Council for Children's Protection (NCPP) should also participate in the summit, which she describes as a one-year-to-the-making-workshop. "We need to see guidelines that can help us. We don't have the necessary expertise right," she said.

The MTRCB chair also said a dialogue would be held in March to discuss "what measures are the implementation of a series."

She explained, "The present complaint about TV series shows is that there are no standards, but when you really think about it, it doesn't have been existing since the 1950s. When regulations are controversial to have it issued in a more that's called socialization."

And MTRCB board member Bobby Acuña will lead the committee on the issuance of a series on television. He has been chosen, Llanes explained, because he has been writing since he was a teenager and he's "quite smart."

According to Llanes, the board also promotes the self-regulation of programs, which requires empowering the industry. "You have to teach the industry to be the standard, encourage them to hold all the companies if they people are already going beyond their limits."
